(At Broadway and Sixth Street is The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times Building. Tours through this modern newspaper plant are conducted weekdays by appointment only.)

Continue west on Broadway.

(Two of Kentucky's more famous distilleries are located only a few blocks south of Broadway at 18th Street; tours are conducted through both. To reach the distilleries, turn left off Broadway onto 18th. At 18th and Howard is Brown-Forman Distilleries Corporation. Tours are conducted weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. One block farther out 18th and a block east (to the left) on West Breckinridge is Bernheim Distilling Company. Tours through this plant are conducted four times daily: 9:00, 10:30, 1:00, and 2:30. It is recommended that women taking these tours wear flat heels. To resume the historic and cultural tour, return on 18th to Broadway and turn left.)

Remain on Broadway to Cecil Avenue (between 41st and 42nd Streets) and there turn left to Miles Park.

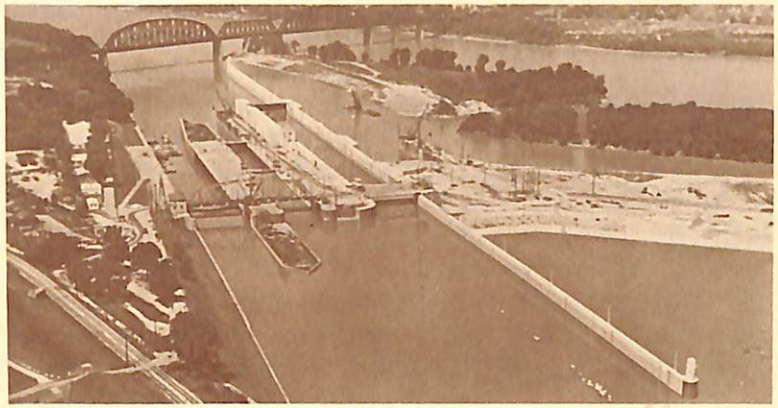
Miles Park —A second Louisville thoroughbred racing course, this is one of the few half-mile oval tracks in the country. A 30-day meet is held each June.

From Miles Park, return on Cecil to Broadway, turn left and continue to the end of the street and the entrance to Shawnee Park.

Shawnee Park—Bordering the beautiful Ohio River, this park's many public facilities include a golf course, tennis courts, ball diamonds and picnic areas. At the east edge of the park is the award winning Sherman Minton bridge, a double-deck interstate span crossing the river to New Albany, Indiana.

A Day's Tour of LOUISVILLE

Return toward downtown along Northwestern Parkway. Turn left at 26th Street for a view of the navigation locks opposite the falls of the Ohio River.



McAlpine Locks and Dam —Recently rebuilt to accommodate the largest river tows, this set of locks handles as much traffic annually as Gatun Lock at the Panama Canal. An observation point has been erected from which the passage of boats down the two-mile-long Portland Canal and through the locks can be observed.

Return to Northwestern Parkway and continue to 22nd Street and follow U. S. 31-W and U. S. 150 markers to Broadway; turn left onto Broadway and drive east.

(At Preston Street turn right one block to Finzer and left on that street one block to the Hillerich and Bradsby Company, home of the world-famous Louisville Slugger baseball bat. A museum is open to the public. To resume the historic and cultural tour, return to Broadway and turn right.)

At the eastern end of Broadway is Cave Hill Cemetery.
